CanCare announces partnership with Hines

A cancer diagnosis not only affects the patient, it also impacts every part of their life - family, friends, community and work. To support employees whose lives have been touched by cancer, Hines has established a partnership with CanCare, a nonprofit cancer support organization founded in Houston in 1990.

Hines is a large, family owned real estate investment, development and management firm with offices in more than 100 cities on four continents. The firm's Senior Vice President of Human Resources Stephanie Fore comments, "Unfortunately, Cancer has touched all our lives in some way and will continue to do so. We are proud to partner with CanCare in bringing hope, along with a vast array of resources, to help employees cope with the disease whether the diagnosis is personal, or that of a friend or family member."

CanCare trains cancer survivors and their family members to provide one-on-one, long-term emotional support to those who are currently experiencing a cancer diagnosis. CanCare volunteers have all experienced cancer firsthand, and know how to face challenges presented by the disease. Matching a new patient to a CanCare volunteer is determined by type of cancer, treatment method, age, gender and family situation. Volunteers stay in touch with patients for as long as needed and offer hope for the future and courage to face the road ahead. All of CanCare's services are confidential and provided free of charge.

As a benefit to any corporation placing importance on health and wellness for employees, CanCare provides:

- Customized, confidential support to employees and family members facing cancer
- Support for associates in the workplace touched either directly or indirectly by cancer
- Toolkits to help supervisors manage workgroups affected by cancer
- Referrals to other cancer resources in the community
